Sirs American business is growing stagnant with all the laws that are on the books now. Microsoft has done more to forward the technical field of personal computers and been rewarded less than any other company in history. One crybaby yelling out loud has created this whole mess. A company that looks forward enough to come up with innovative products is now being strangled because another company wants a large slice of the pie. Lets stop this nonsense and get on with more useful projects like maybe checking the books at Enron? Thank you Dick A. Campbell
